Spoiled Her Beauty.

Harriet Howard, of W. 34th St., New York, at one time had her beauty spoiled with skin trouble. She writes:
"I had salt rheum or eczema for years, but nothing would cure it until I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve." A quick and sure healer for cuts, burns and sores. 25c at Oberdorfer's drug store.

STOCK AND CROP.

—Hibler Bros. sold 60 yearling Southdown bucks last week for $15 per head.

—Eighteen carloads of fat cattle was shipped from here one day last week to Chicago.

—A Georgetown firm has purchased thirty-five thousand bushels of wheat at from 75 to 90 cents per bushel.

—J. Miller Ward sold Saturday to Simon Weil for export the finest bunch of cattle shown so far as reported, in the county. There were 67 head and the average weight will be upward of 1,500 pounds. The price received is a fancy one, and private.

—Bishop Hibler, a prominent Bourbon county farmer, who threshed his last crop of wheat Friday, says this is the worst wheat crop grown in Bourbon during his twenty years of experience. Of the 13,000 bushels threshed with his machine not one crop would grade No. 2, and that 75 per cent. of the total was only fit for feeding purposes. Mr. Hibler says the average per acre threshed by him is as follows: wheat, seven bushels; rye, twenty-five bushels and oats forty bushels per acre.

A Faithful Dog.

[Fuel.]

"The speech made by the late Senator Vest at the trial of a dog case some years ago brings to my mind a case in which the faithfulness, loyalty and love of a dog for his master was strongly and pathetically portrayed," said a Treasury official at a dinner one night last week. "A man whom I had known from childhood and who occupied first place in my friendship, was taken ill and after months of long suffering died. His death was a blow from which I shall never entirely recover, and it is just this one thing above all others that poor old Dick, my friend's dog, and I held in common.

"During my friend's illness I called at his home on my way to the office, and as soon as the working over I was at his bedside again. Always I found Dick there, looking up in his master's face with his big, sad eyes. I patted the faithful fellow and told him it was all right, that his master was going to get well. He would wag his tail and lick my hand in reply. There he stayed and nothing could induce him to remain away very long. Night and day he lay there at the foot of the bed keeping a faithful watch.

"Finally the end came. I am a strong man, but I went to pieces. The sight of that dumb brute would have torn a heart of iron, for no human being could have suffered more. During the preparations for putting the body in the coffin they were forced to carry the dog out of the house and tie him.
But it was not for long. Dick broke his rope and quietly sneaked into the house and again took up his watch, but this time under the coffin, and there he stayed, snapping at all who approached his master's body. When the pall-bearers were about to remove the casket it was I who saved the undertaker's life. It almost seemed that at last the strain was broken, and the poor dog's growls, which were more like groans, told his story. His attack upon the pall-bearers was violent, and for a moment I feared the animal had gone mad, but the poor fellow was crazed with grief. I approached him, and in the same manner as during his master's illness, patted him and said it would be 'all right.' In this way I succeeded in getting him out of the house, but this scar on my hand bears evidence of the struggle I had in doing so.

"When I reached the street the first thing my eye rested upon was the dog Dick under the hearse, and there he remained in a dull sullen way, walking along until the grave was reached.

"At the grave he was in a fighting mood no longer. He seemed to understand in his mute way that it must happen. After the burial I coaxed and begged him to come back with me, but to no purpose, so I left him there, where he died a few days later."

Present Status of Japan's Terms.

The substance and present status of Japanese terms are as follows:

First—Russia's recognition of Japan's "preponderant influence" in Korea, with her right to preserve order in the civil administration, give military and financial advice to the Emperor of Korea, Japan binding herself to observe the territorial integrity of Korea and (it is believed) the policy of the "open door." Accepted.

Second—Mutual obligation to evacuate Manchuria. Accepted.

Third—Japan's obligation to restore in Manchuria Chinese sovereignty and civil administration. Accepted.

Fourth—Mutual obligation to respect in the future "the territorial integrity and administrative entity" of China in Manchuria, and to maintain the principle of equal opportunity for the industry and commerce of all nations ("open door"). Accepted.

Fifth—The session of the Island of Sakhalin to Japan. Refused and final consideration deferred.

Sixth—The surrender to Japan of the Russian leases of the Liao Tung peninsula, including Port Arthur, Dainy and the Blonde and Elliott Islands.
Accepted.

Seventh—The surrender of China by arrangement with Japan of the branch of the Chinese Eastern railroad, running south from Harbin to Port Arthur and New Chwang, together with the retrocession of all the privileges obtained under the concession of 1898.
Accepted in principle; final agreement deferred.

Eighth—The limitation of the Chinese concession obtained by Mr. Rothstein and Prince Uktomsky in 1896, under which the "Cutoff" through Northern Manchuria was built to connect the Transsiberian and the Ussuri railroads so as to provide for the retention of the ownership of the line by the Chinese Eastern, but with provision for the eventual substitution of Chinese imperial police for Russian "railroad guards." Accepted.

Ninth—Renunciation for the cost of the war. Refused and action deferred.

Tenth—The surrender of Russian warships interned in neutral far Eastern waters. Disagreement and action deferred.

Eleventh—The limitation of Russia's naval power on Pacific water.
Deferred.

Twelfth—The grant to the citizens of Japan of the right to fish in waters to the Russian littoral from Vadi-vostok north to the Bering sea. Accepted.
